Rites Pending For Crash Victim, Colin R. Loving

A plane crash early Saturday morning took the life of Colin R. Loving, 20, of Ponca City, a junior at the University of Oklahoma, Norman.

He was the son of Mrs. Rosemary Loving, 305 North Pine and William Loving, Oklahoma City.

Arrangements are pending at E. M. Trout and Sons Funeral Home.

The crash claimed the lives of five other O.U. students. It occurred at Goldsby when the group was returning to Will Rogers Airport where they had rented the plane Friday afternoon.

Loving was a 1970 graduate of the Ponca City High School and was a member of a cheer-leading team winning national honors.

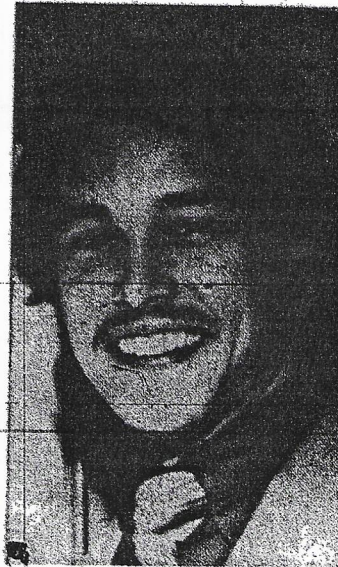

Last year he was co-captain of the cheer squad for the university and was on the team this year.

Loving was selected as one of the top freshman men on the Oklahoma University campus for 1971. Thirteen were awarded this honor based on scholastic standing, ability to express themselves and on relevant contributions to the university.

As a sophomore he was named to participate in the all-Creek variety show produced each spring to tour various military bases in Oklahoma and Texas. He was an advertising-art major.

The past two summers, Loving toured the United States with the National Cheerleaders Association conducting cheer-leading clinics.

Besides his mother and father, Loving is survived by three sisters, Cassie of New York and Candy and Carl of the home; a brother, Kevin of Denver; his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Carrol Loving of Oklahoma City and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mowder, 928 North Pine; three aunts, Willa Gosting, 217

Small Plane Crash Norman Kills Six Oklahoma Unive

Ponca City Graduate Is Victim

GOLDSBY, Okla. (P) — Six young men were killed early Saturday morning in the crash of a single-engine rented plane at the small airport here about six miles south of Norman.

The victims were identified as Danny Joe Booth, 20, Edmond, the pilot; Mark F. Quinby, 21, Oklahoma City; Steve England, age unknown, Oklahoma City; Bernard F. Miller, 21, Bethany; Colin R. Loving, 20, Ponca City, and Russell Hendrix, 20, Muskogee.

Loving was a cheerleader for the University of Oklahoma football team and the other five were students at the school.

The crash happened at 2:25 a.m., three of the watches belonging to the victims were stopped at that time, but was not discovered until the airport manager, J. M. Reed, got up about 7 a.m.

Reed said his wife first noticed the plane in the field about 300 yards from his house trailer.

He said he did not hear the crash but did hear his dogs barking at about that time.

When his wife noticed the plane, he called the police and then ran out to the wreck.

"I saw a number of people in there," he said. "They were all obviously dead."

Even though the accident happened at the airport, the man-

Social Security Debate

Retirement Age May Drop to 60

WASHINGTON (P)—The Senate voted 29 to 25 Saturday to cut the Social Security retirement age from 62 to 60 and to reduce from 60 to 55 the age at which widows can draw benefits.

But the initial cost of the proposal was estimated at $1.7 billion, leading the bill's managers to indicate it would have to be dropped in the Senate-House conference on the Social Security Welfare bill.

The Senate adopted, 52 to 3, another amendment to provide for payment under Social Security the heavy costs of treatment of persons suffering from chronic kidney disease.

Before the debate ended, Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., Ind.-Va., offered an amendment which may turn out to be the solution of the dispute over rival proposals to deal with the problem of welfare families with dependent children.

The Byrd rider would eliminate from the budgetative provision of the various provisions enacted over the years.

The vote on the amendment was put over until later.

Under the law women can receive checks at age 60. Reduced actuarial they would receive after quitting age.

The age 60 p amendment calls reduced payment recipient would remaining lifetime age the same it would get if he begin drawing.

Widows at present receive benefits on their former Social Security contributions.

The widows at age 55 also would reduce payment the amendment.

BELFAST (AP) — A civilian was killed in a bomb explosion and a soldier shot dead by a sniper Saturday. Thousands of Protestants marched through downtown Belfast to protest violence in Northern Ireland.

The bomb, estimated by the army at about 100 pounds, had been planted in a parked car outside a tavern and went off without warning. Besides the civilian killed, 10 other persons were injured and a wide area of Belfast's shopping district was damaged.

Earlier, a British soldier was shot dead by a sniper in the Roman Catholic Ardoyne District, and a stretcher bearer helping to remove the body was wounded.

The violence raised the three-year death toll in Northern Ireland's sectarian fighting to 587.

Under a strong British army security cloak, more than 100,000 Protestants, led by 50 bands, marched four miles in bright sunshine from their Shankill Road heartland to Northern Ireland's government seat at Stormont Castle.

The rally made it clear it wanted tougher action against guerrillas in the province and control of its affairs — ended when Britain imposed direct rule six months ago — restored.

It followed a day of bomb and bullet bloodshed Friday which left four dead — including a girl the army claimed was a guerrilla sniper — and at least 25 wounded in Belfast and other towns.

er. He said he did not hear the crash but did hear his dogs barking at about that time.

When his wife noticed the plane, he called the police and then ran out to the wreck. "I saw a number of people in there," he said. "They were all obviously dead."

Even though the accident happened at the airport, the manager didn't think they were trying to land at the unlighted and hard to identify airport.

"The airport just happened to be underneath them," he said.

The plane belonged to Catlin Aviation located at Will Rogers World Airport in Oklahoma City.

Lloyd Catlin, owner of Catlin Aviation, said the plane was rented by Booth Friday evening at 5:30 p.m. and left for Dallas. It was due back at 8:30 a.m. Saturday morning.

Booth, a licensed pilot with an instructors rating, was a former employe of Catlin. "He left solo," said Catlin, "so he must have picked up the others somewhere else."

Authorities are not sure what caused the wreck. But since there was no fire, they think the engine was not running when the plane hit the ground. They said it appeared the plane came almost directly down, hitting nose first, bouncing back ten feet and scattering debris over a wide area.

McClain County Sheriff Joe Huddleston said the hands of the young men were stamped with ink as though they had attended a dance or some other public event earlier in the night.

The bodies were taken to a Purcell hospital first but then to University Hospital in Oklahoma City for autopsies.

Dead Parents' Benefits Due For Illegitimates

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — All acknowledged illegitimate children of a deceased parent are entitled to his earned Social Security benefits as are children of legitimate birth, a federal judge here has ruled.

The ruling was in favor of a 9-year-old Seattle child and is retroactive to October, 1970. The class action ruling also applies to all children in similar situations.

U.S. District Judge Morel Sharp's ruling on Friday was based on a decision last summer of a three-judge federal panel that invalidated part of a federal law that denied equality to children born out of wedlock.

A legal services attorney contended denial of benefits to an illegitimate child was an act of "irrational discrimination" by the government.

The attorney said the father in the case had filed papers in King County Superior Court acknowledging he was the parent.
